"I remember the bat-winged lizard-birds,

The earliest Cockney who came my way,

He was death to feather and fin and fur.

Through Regent's Park into Camden Town.

And I remember like yesterday

The Age of Ice and the mammoth herds,

When he pushed through the forest that lined the Strand,

He fought his neighbour with axes and swords,

And the giant tigers that stalked them down

He trapped my beavers at Westminster.

And the Romans left and the Danes blew in -

He killed my heron off Lambeth Pier.

With paint on his face and a club in his hand.

Flint or bronze, at my upper fords,

And that's where your history-books begin!"

And bridged and roaded and ruled the land,

He netted my salmon, he hunted my deer,

Then the Romans came with a heavy hand,
